European IC experts celebrate FEIEA awards success

More than 250 people from nine countries celebrated the best internal communications in Europe at a gala event held at Estoril's historic casino.

The Grand Prix is the highlight of the European Association for Internal Communication's (FEIEA) calendar and comprises 14 classes ranging from best internal communication strategy to best digital communication.

The evening event on 29 November was hosted by Portuguese association APCE at the stunning Estoril Casino – the inspiration for Ian Fleming's 007 novel Casino Royale.

This year the FEIEA Grand Prix featured 39 shortlisted entries from Austria, Belgium, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia, Switzerland, and the UK.

FEIEA President Antonio Rapoula welcomed guests saying: "We are celebrating and acclaiming the height of European best practice in internal communication. This year we had 138 entries from 75 companies across Europe.

"You are the experts. You are the specialists. You are the professionals that drive forward effective internal communication every day."

"FEIEA is a network that links European internal communicators through national associations. This pan-European spirit is our foundation and legacy and FEIEA truly represents the professionals that communicate with employees."

The awards comprise a rigorous two-part process with entries judged by national associations first, then recommended entries going forward to the pan-European jury.
